Hand of Toil
1,000 Miles an Hour
Expensive Jokes
Criticism

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

FEW of the prosperous among us think as often as they should about the "curse of toil," the brain that plans it, and the heart that keeps it busy.

All that we possess we owe to this unceasingly toiling hand.

Our automobiles, houses, railroad trains, ships, roads, clothing, food, all are created by this hand, wearied and caused by incessant hard labor.

Civilization in time will learn to honor and reward the hand that works more highly than it honors now the hand that successfully carries the sword, the bayonet or the machine gun.

A LITTLE while ago, when you talked about flying, that talk was called insanity.

Later, when you talked of flying 100 miles an hour, that was called "foolish." Still later, when you spoke of 1,000 miles an hour, scientists said: "Absolutely impossible," shrugged their shoulders and passed on.

IT is NOT absolutely impossible, it may happen soon. Recently, in Germany, a so-called "rocket automobile" attained a speed of 62 miles an hour seconds after it started, and in 20 seconds had reached a speed of 90 miles an hour.

This terrific and almost instantaneous speed was attained by using the power of explosives discharged at the rear of the machine and pushing it forward, like the kicking of a gun when you pull the trigger.

AN airplane based on that principle might well attain a speed of a thousand miles an hour, and already German scientists talk of "an air flight from Berlin to New York in five hours."

Going at its highest speed the airplane would need no wings, just as a gun's nose, a flying bullet needs no wings.

A series of explosions at the stern would give the necessary propulsion.

The plane would cross the ocean "shot" by the power of its own explosives, as the giant bullet of the German gun "Big Bertha" shot through the air 75 miles.

Small collapsible wings, or a parachute, to be released by the high speed engine at the last moment, could take a safe glide to earth.

OF course many things are necessary before this thing can be done: careful adjustment, absolute precision, and meanwhile other and better methods may be found.

If the modern gunner with a small gun can reach a battleship many miles away, entirely out of sight, there is no reason why a bigger airship "bullet" should not reach its landing field over in America.

OUR army and navy are to have their greatest war tests. Maneuvers in Long Island Sound, out in the Pacific as far as the Philippines, including the shore line of coast defense guns, will show what a great fighting nation we are.

Meanwhile, if REAL war came, flying machines, released from great catapults out of sight of our coasts, would hover the sound, or over the Pacific, and over our foolish coast defense guns blow up our cities.

Our battleships are expensive jokes, costing $50,000,000 each. What the country needs, and hasn't got, is the world's best fighting air fleet.

DR. FLEXNER says he left the Rockefeller board that he might be free to criticize educational systems somewhere.

Why not stay on the board and make criticism is the most important work next to creative work. The Rockefellers would not object.

Dr. Flexner complains that American universities "turn out productive geniuses and plausible bond salesmen rather than scholars."

This country needs good advertisers and good bond salesmen. And what is "scholarship"? Knowledge amounts to nothing unless you make it useful by using it.

Dr. Flexner has done extremely good work in connection with the Rockefeller general education board, demanding higher standards in schools and colleges, exposing and denouncing inadequate training for a medical degree, attacking "diploma mills." He should continue on the board as a progressive scholar.

TRADE COMMISSION PROBE TO BE RESUMED JUNE 12

WOMAN DETERMINED TO MAKE TRIP FIRST

Miss Mabel Boll Seeks Pilot for Transatlantic Flight

Curtiss Field, N. Y., June 4—"I'll take off today, if I can get a pilot," declared Miss Mabel Boll, the "queen of diamonds," when she learned that Miss Amelia Earhart, aviatrix, and Wilmer Stultz, pilot, had flown from Boston to Halifax, presumably on the start of a flight to London.

Miss Boll is determined to be the first woman to fly over the Atlantic. She recently flew from here to Havana with Stultz and Charles A. Levine.

She said the Bellanca monoplane, Columbia, in which Clarence Chamberlin and Levine flew to Germany last year, had been placed at her disposal for a flight to Paris and that she had engaged Stultz as her pilot. She appeared very much disturbed at the news that Stultz had hopped off with Miss Earhart.

"I am trying to get a pilot now to fly the Columbia to Paris over the southern route," said Miss Boll. "If I can get a pilot today, I will hop off immediately."

TRAIN BOMBED

Chang Tso-Lin Escapes, However; Now Safe in Mukden

London, June 4 — Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Northern war lord who left Peking as swarming hordes of Southern Chinese troops poured into the city, arrived safely at Mukden, Manchuria, although he suffered a narrow escape from death when his train was wrecked by the bombing of a bridge enroute, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokio stated today.

During the journey, it was reported, the train guards opened fire with machine guns upon a party of alleged Southern troops, dressed in civilian clothes. Thirty of the alleged Southerners were killed.

Japanese troops are reported to have arrested two Chinese in whose possession bombs were found.

Four Face Death to Span Pacific; Girl Making Hop

Messages from Quartet Tell of Storms and Struggles To Rise Higher

RADIO KEEPS WATCH

Pass Phoenix Islands on Flight to Suva from Kauai

Honolulu, T. H., June 4—The monoplane Southern Cross on the last leg of its perilous 2,100-mile from Hawaii to Suva, Fiji Islands, ran into bad weather early today 900 miles from its goal. "Eight hundred miles to Suva," added the messages. "Bad weather."

Honolulu, June 4—Grimming at their uneven odds with death, four men in an airplane today were fighting tropical storms a mile and a half above the ocean in a daring attempt to be the first to span the treacherous reaches of the South Pacific.

They are the gallant crew of the trimotored Fokker plane, Southern Cross. Capt. C. E. Kingsford-Smith, C. T. P. Ulm, Harry W. Lyons and James Warner, who reached here Friday after a non-stop flight from the mainland of California.

It was the first lap of their proposed 7800-mile flight to Australia. With barely two days' rest, the airmen yesterday morning climbed aboard their ship at Barking Sands Field, on the neighboring Island of Kauai and calmly set out on the longest over-water flight ever attempted.

Their destination is Suva, Fiji Islands, a little dot in the Southern Pacific 3170 miles from Honolulu. As on the 2400-mile hop from California to Hawaii, the unfailing radio told the progress of the hazardous venture.

Sent in Face of Death

These messages told of storms and the struggle to rise above them with a missing motor as calmly as a man would say "Good morning." These men,

EUROPE IS GOAL

Start at Boston and Now on Way to Trepassey, Newfoundland

Trepassey Bay, Newfoundland, June 4—The transatlantic plane Friendship bearing Wilmer Stultz, Miss Amelia Earhart and Lou Gordon arrived here from Halifax, N. S. at 2:38 o'clock P. M., local time.

Halifax, N. S., June 4—The transatlantic plane Friendship, carrying Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Louis Gordon, hopped off at 9:30 o'clock this morning, daylight time, for Trepassey, Newfoundland, on the second leg of its trip to Europe. Weather conditions were perfect.

The three fliers were in high spirits, and confident of their ability to guide the huge three-motored plane across the North Atlantic. They made an unexpected stop here yesterday because of fog which covered the remainder of the route to Trepassey, where they had intended to make their first stop for fuel. Pilot Stultz brought the plane, which is equipped with pontoons, down on the harbor waters in a perfect landing, after a successful flight from Boston, the starting point of the expedition.

Second Leg 250 Miles

The distance from here to Trepassey is about 250 miles. From there after inspecting their engine and refilling their tanks, the fliers will take off over the long water jump. If conditions are favorable, the take-off from Trepassey may be made later today.

The greatest secrecy shrouded the preparations for the flight. The plane, a Fokker, officially recorded as the NX-4204, was purchased from Commander Richard E. Byrd, who originally

G. O. P. CONVENTION "SIDESHOW" OPENS

National Committee Meets To Settle Disputes Preliminary to Nominations

Kansas City, Mo., June 4 — The quadriennial sideshow that always accompanies a Republican national convention—the settlement of differences between the lily-whites and the black-and-tans of the southern states—got under way here today with the meeting of the Republican National Committee.

Seventy-three votes in the convention are involved in this year's contests, representing factional quarrels in eight states and one territory.

The candidacy of Herbert Hoover is involved in virtually every contest, and the Hoover managers were alert and watchful as the session got under way.

So militantly alert were the Hoover people, in fact, that they established an innovation for contest hearings by employing ex-Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, to act as general counsel for all Hoover contesting delegates, irrespective of what state they represented or whether they were the contestees or the contestants. Veterans of these quadriennial shows could not recall an individual candidate ever employing a general counsel before in such a broad-scope manner. Lenroot had several legal assistants. In addition, there were other prominent Hoover leaders scattered about the hearing room, including ex-Governor James P. Goodrich of Indiana, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General of the United States—all of which attested to the militant alertness and efficiency of the Hoover organization.

The room was thronged with southern Republicans—Black and White—long before the session got under way at 10:30 a. m.

Among the prominent persons at the ceremony were: Harry H. Blee, chief of the airports section of the aeronautical branch of the Department of Commerce; Col. Paul Henderson, of the National Transport, Inc., W. B. Stout, chief of the Stout Air Services of Detroit; Brig. Gen. W. E. Gilmore, assistant chief of the air corps, of Dayton, and the transatlantic fliers Brock and Schlee, who landed on the new field with their ship. "Pride of Detroit."

Interested Prospective Tenant for Flat Takes Money Instead

Chicago, June 4 — When James Crawford's "For Rent" sign drew a prospective tenant to his apartment, Crawford was asked about other tenants.

"Then hand it over," demanded the party of the second part who suddenly produced a revolver.

He relieved Crawford of $1,000 in currency and fled.

ALL DOGS IN TOWNSHIP ARE QUARANTINED

Prompt Action Taken To Check Rabies Threat in Marion County Locality

IN EFFECT 60 DAYS

Official Notices Posted in Tully Township by Health Officer and Dog Warden

All dogs in Tully Township are to be quarantined for a period of six weeks to check a threatened rabies epidemic, County Dog Warden Dale Rhoads announced today.

The warden and Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner, expected to visit the township this afternoon to post official quarantine notices. There are approximately 130 dogs in the township and all must be kept on the premises of their owners for at least 60 days, it was stated.

This is the first township dog quarantine ever ordered in the county, as far as official records disclose.

The quarantine order followed discovery that a dog killed in Martel last week after it had bitten several other dogs was afflicted with rabies.

Receiving a report of the attacks made by the animal, Dr. Sifritt sent its head to the state department of health laboratory at Columbus, where an examination disclosed evidence of rabies. Action to quarantine all dogs in the township was taken at a meeting of the County Board of Health Saturday.

Takes Immediate Action

The infected animal had been killed and buried at Martel before the case came to Dr. Sifritt's attention and he immediately ordered the carcass dug up and the head removed for examination.

Owners of a half dozen dogs attacked by the infected canine were immediately notified to pen up the animals pending issuing of the general quarantine order.

The dog which started the rabies scare was a vagrant and wore no license tag, the county warden states. The identity of its owner could not be ascertained.

The 60-day quarantine period will be sufficient to eliminate all danger of a spread of rabies, officials state. All animals developing signs of infection within that period of time will be killed. A number of the dogs bitten by the infected animal have been killed, according to Dr. Sifritt. Others are being treated by their owners.

LINDBERGH LANDS IN STORM; FLIES EAST

Spends Night at Fort Bliss Airfield Before Resuming Flight

El Paso, Tex., June 4—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who spent Sunday night here, took off from the Fort Bliss aviation field here early today and headed eastward for an unannounced destination.

Lindbergh landed during a sandstorm at 5:50 o'clock Sunday afternoon. He attempted to take off again last night but returned within 50 minutes because of an electrical storm ahead.

Col. Henry Breckenridge and Maj. Thomas Lanphier accompanied Lindbergh.

TRAINMEN STRIKE

New York, June 4—All trolley car service on Staten Island was to be suspended at noon today when motormen, switchmen and shopmen of the Richmond Railways Company walk out on strike. More than 15,000 commuters to Manhattan and Brooklyn will have to find a new way to reach their homes tonight. The strike was voted after the workers had learned the company had refused to grant increase in wages.

In Service 37 Years

Marion Chief, Head of State Association, Began Fire-Fighting Career with Old Huber Department in 1891

THOMAS J. McFARLAND, chief of the Marion Fire Department and president of the Fire Chiefs' Association of Ohio, who will preside at the convention of the association to open here Tuesday, will on July 8, celebrate his twenty-fifth anniversary as a chief of the department here.

Becoming a member of the call department at the Huber Manufacturing Co. in 1891, the chief for the last 37 years has been interested in the prevention and fighting of fires. For five years he was a member of the Huber department and as such was subject to call to fight fires in any part of the city.

Equipped with a hand-drawn pumper, the Huber company was then a vital part of the city's fire-fighting force. The first fire to which McFarland was called after he became a member of the Huber department was the blaze which destroyed the old Erie depot.

In 1898 he became a member of the city paid department, bringing the number of paid men up to six. Starting as a ladderman, the chief worked in various positions of the department until July 6, 1903, when he was made chief.

Through the persistent efforts and efficiency of the chief, the department has grown until there are now three stations with 28 paid men on duty.

Ability of the chief in maintaining the efficiency of his organization as well as his ability in fire prevention and fire-fighting, has won for him state-wide recognition among fire and insurance officials. It was because of this standing that the chief was selected to head the state association at the meeting held at Mansfield last year.

Coolidge's Name Likely to Be Presented to National Meeting in Kansas City

Hilles on Scene of Convention with Draft Movement Plans; Mysterious Letter from President Reported Given to "Spokesman" for Use at Sessions

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Star Staff Correspondent

Kansas City, June 4—The name of Calvin Coolidge quite probably will be presented to the Republican national convention here next week and voted upon—unless his action forbids it.

This much seemed assured today as the G. O. P. elders gathered in Kansas City and got down to the actual work of the convention, the first of which is the settlement of the perennial quarrels among the lily-whites and the black-and-tans of the always Democratic South.

The "draft Coolidge whether or no" movement reached Kansas City in the person of Charles D. Hilles, the New York national committeeman, who has been the chief rallying post for the anti-Hoover forces of the East. Like a sentinel pine Hilles has stood out against the gale-like winds that have blown many of the other leaders into the Hoover camp. He may have swayed at times, but he has never fallen.

Who will present the magic name of Coolidge, if it is to be formally presented to the convention, who will lead the fight in the open and behind the scenes, Mr. Hilles did not say. But he appeared quite confident that when the balloting begins 10 days hence there will be a lot of votes to be added in the column that carries at its masthead the name of Calvin Coolidge.

Report Mysterious Letter

The only way in which this can be prevented, in the opinion of Mr. Hilles, and incidentally some others, will be for the president to flatly put his foot down. Mr. Hilles doesn't pretend to know whether this will be done or not; nor do any of the other leaders here pretend to know, and in this latter group are the somewhat apprehensive managers of Herbert Hoover.

There are reports, persistent enough but not confirmable, that Mr. Coolidge already has prepared for such a contingency of his name being presented to the convention. There are reports that he has written a letter which has been entrusted to a "spokesman" and which is to be read to the convention when and if his name is presented.

PROBATE JUDGE TAKES ACTION ON AFFIDAVITS

Managers and Employes of Three Houses Face Charges

ALL ARE DISMISSED

Court Is Without Jurisdiction, McNeal Decides, in Latest Movie Case

The scene of action in the fight against Sunday motion pictures shifted from the Court of Common Pleas to Probate Court yesterday when affidavits were filed before Probate Judge Louis B. McNeal against 15 persons, charging them with participation in the presentation of a theatrical production on Sunday.

Breaking away from the established custom of arresting only the managers of the show houses, affidavits yesterday were filed against owners, managers, doormen, ticket sellers, orchestra leaders, pianists and operators. Only the ushers escaped.

Affidavits were filed against owners, managers and employes of the Grand, Oakland and Princess theaters, all of which were open yesterday.

Rev. Wiley Young, pastor of Fite Memorial Baptist Church, filed affidavits for the arrest of Oakland and Princess theater employes. Marvin Crabtree, 690 Davids-st, a clerk at the Gardner Tap & Die Co. plant, filed affidavits for the arrest of employes of the Grand. The affidavits filed by Rev. Young were not served.

All Dismissed

When the 15 appeared in Probate Court this morning for arraignment, all were dismissed by Judge McNeal when Attorneys J. Malcolm Stratton and Grant E. Mosmer, defense counsel for Edward F. Sharpless, manager of the Grand, cited a decision of the State Supreme Court which held that the Probate Court had no jurisdiction in this particular case. The Supreme Court decision held that in cases of misdemeanor the information for affidavits must be filed by the prosecuting attorney. Since the information in this case was filed by Crabtree and not by the prosecuting attorney, the Probate Court was without authority to hear the cases.

Motions to dismiss the charges against the theater managers and employes were filed by Attorneys Mosmer and Stratton when they appeared in court this morning. Judge McNeal postponed hearing on the motions until Tuesday morning but later dismissed the charges after reading the Supreme Court decision.

Only five of the 15 affidavits filed yesterday were served by Sheriff James Deal. Others appeared this morning when notified by the sheriff that charges had been filed against them. The five arrests were made during the afternoon show at the Grand theater.

HIGHWAYS and BYWAYS

BY KARL R. M'ELROY

REPORTS coming from the Marion County deputy game protector state that many young animals are being taken by residents of the county to raise. This is also true of eggs of game birds.

It has been pointed out that such acts are illegal and can be punished by fines.

Under no circumstances can wild animals be kept during the closed season. If animals have been found whose mother has been killed, the only thing that can be done is to send them to the state game farm.

Eggs of game birds can never be taken. Those wishing to obtain them must first get a permit from the State Fish and Game Department. Eggs will be furnished by the department for this purpose. In the case of migratory birds a federal license is necessary.

Eagles Beat Fostoria 3 to 1 In Season's Best Game

LONGSHORE ALLOWS BUT THREE BINGLES

Marion Team Plays Tight Defense; Youthful Hurler Fans 10 Men; Locals Held to Four Safe Hits

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

Showing more curves than an Atlantic City bathing beauty, Young Longshore started his first game as hurler for the Marion Eagles and, after giving a few lessons on pitching, set Fostoria down to a 3 to 1 defeat here yesterday.

Giving the youthful moundsman the best support of the season, Marion made but one error in the contest. Longshore fanned 10 men and allowed but three hits. He was a bit wild at times issuing five bases on balls. These however did not hurt him.

Walks Are Fatal

Although his record was not so impressive, Barry hurled a nice game for the visitors. He allowed four hits and a like number of walks gave the locals three runs. But one of the five errors made by Fostoria figured in Marion's scoring.

Mays was back of the plate again yesterday playing a fine game. Although he is not a hitter like Sackesteder he is much more certain of his throw to second. He picked several men off the middle sack.

Rosebery at First

Donaldson did not appear in the game his place at second being taken by Bacon. Sharrock held his old position in right field while Rosebery played first.

Although getting four hits in as many trips to the plate last Sunday, Sharrock lapsed back into his old form yesterday. He failed to connect safely with the ball, fanning twice and popping out the other two times.

Bacon scored two of Marion's runs after walking. The first one came in the second inning with two down when the second baseman muffled Mays' single. In the fourth he scored the second run from first on Price's triple. Price later scored on Rosebery's sacrifice fly.

Fostoria scored its only run in the eighth frame. With two out, Barry crossed the plate when Mays attempted to pick off a runner stealing second.

RICKARD SLATED TO APPEAR WITH PLANS

Heeney-Tunney Fight To Be Staged at Yankee Stadium on July 26

New York, June 4—On Thursday next Tex Rickard will appear before the boxing commissioners with plans and specifications for the heavyweight title bout between Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney.

Rickard plans to stage this spectacle at the Yankee Stadium on July 26, but the passage of the bill authorizing a 25 per cent federal tax on all boxing tickets over $5 has altered some of Tex's calculations.

Rickard still believes the fight will attract a gate of at least $1,500,000 but he has made some changes in his original seating plans and now hopes to be able to accommodate 100,000 spectators by extensive ouilding on the infield.

By gradually sloping his ringside sections upward from the ring he can put them with the bleachers at a point considerably above the field level. The new left field extension of the upper stands will also be finished by that time and by placing the ring at second base the ringside sections can accomodate at least 20,000.

It is probable that the promoter will price at least 80,000 of the outer ring seats at $130. Those patrons thus escaping the federal tax. There will be several intermediate prices with the first 20 or more rows of ringside seats selling at $45, this fee to include the federal and state taxes amounting to 30 percent of the face value of the ticket. The net to Rickard would then be a little more than $30. The average price of a seat for this fight will be approximately $15.

WOMEN AFTER TITLE

Montclair, N. J., June 4—The Women's Eastern Golf Championship will get under way here today with 108 women teeing up. The field is one of the largest and also the best yet competing for an eastern title. Glenna Collett, the holder of the eastern championship, will not be back from England to defend her title, but there will be quite an array of stars trying for this most coveted trophy.

FANS SHOWER UMPS WITH POP BOTTLES

Brooklyn Rooters Have Private War When Robins Fail To Get Breaks

New York, June 4—Brooklyn's pennant-hungry fans are saying it with pop bottles these days when the breaks go against the Robins, and umpires officiating in the no man's land of the National League are considering the advisability of putting their masks on backwards. Umpire Charley Moran had to be escorted off Ebbets Field by police after yesterday's red hot game between Pittsburgh and Brooklyn, which Outfielder Jigger Statz apparently had saved for the Robins by making a phenomenal shoestring catch of Traynor's Texas leaguer with two on base in the ninth.

Moran ruled that the Statz's alleged catch was a pick up. Two Pittsburgh runs scored on the hit and the game went into extra innings, the Pirates winning out in the fourteenth by a 9 to 7 score. After making his decision, Moran was the target for the greatest shower of pop bottles ever unleashed by a Brooklyn crowd. The contest was halted for a few minutes.

Fifth Hit Wins

The game was won on the fifth hit made during the afternoon by Pete Scott, converted outfielder playing first base for Pittsburgh. Barnhart, with four hits, was another hero.

Forty-five thousand fans saw the Giants get partial revenge for the four straight defeats they suffered in Chicago by trouncing the Cubs, 10 to 5. Artie Nehf, former Giant, was kayoed. Fitzsimmons, New York hurler, helped win his own game with a double and a triple. The Giants now trail the league-leading Reds by only three games.

These two heavy-scoring games, following the wild slugging in Saturday's contests, make a total of 114 runs and 19 homers for the last six National League games played.

Tigers Are Defeated

The Detroit Tigers, who seemed primed to stop the Yankees after their four straight victories over Cleveland, were plastered by the league leaders again 7 to 2. Babe Ruth withdrew early with a lame ankle, but Buster Gehrig obliged with his eleventh homer, a gorgeous sock in the fifth inning that was New York's first hit off Whitehill. Hoyt did the throwing for the winners and Catcher Pat Collins covered more ground than a circus tent by making a putout at second base.

The game drew the largest Detroit crowd of the year, 38,000.

The Athletics trail the Yanks by 8½ games. Foxx's homer with two on in the ninth wasn't enough and they lost to the White Sox, 6 to 5. Metzler got four hits while Ty Cobb went hitless and dropped below the .300 mark to .298.

Charley Ruffing of the Red Sox scalped the Indians, 4 to 3 and the Sox regained fifth place from Detroit. Other teams did not play.

FIGHT MATCHED

New York, June 4—Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, who lost a close decision to Ted Morgan here recently, has been matched for a return bout with the junior lightweight champion in Brooklyn on June 27.

BAD WEATHER WILL NOT STOP FIGHT

Fear Tex Charging Too High For Fights

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 4—With many of our great intellects hastening to confess that the front is on the pumpkin in so far as summer boxing in New York is concerned, it is worthy of note today that men in his organization have warned Tex Rickard that he is overplaying his hand. They didn't actually mention the Tunney-Heeney heavyweight championship match in the conversation but it is suspected that this intercourse was intended, among others, they think that Rickard has reached the point where he imagines that the cash starts running in the spring mostly because it is in such a terrible hurry to reopen the Garden box office.

In fine, they fear Rickard is charging too much for ordinary fights, particularly in view of the blight that is supposed to be on the industry this year.

Rickard plans to rap the patients on the cranium for $40 or more in the ringside rows of the Tunney-Heeney enterprise and today, in the face of his recent admission that it looks like a very short line before the paymaster's window this season, he reaffirmed his forecast that this fight will gross a million and a half dollars. He will be compelled to do this by the way the reservations are coming in and I guess that explanation will suffice. Still somebody thinks of a good one.

Any fight between Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney shouldn't gross over a million and I can't help but think Rickard is a man who ought to know what he is talking about. He guessed wrong on the Mendez-McLarnin fight and that doesn't make him so much better than a mugg who somehow can manage to guess wrong on nearly all of them.

However, his employes were more specifically concerned with the immediate future—next Thursday night, to be precise. They told Rickard they thought that $11 for a ringside seat was too much for a return bout between Mike McTigue and Armand Emmanuel. Personally, I know it's too much to pay to see McTigue do anything, except retire from the ring but, of course, I'm not one of the patients and I can stay away in a body without affecting Rickard's purse in the slightest. But even a patient is likely to recommend that he knows too little about Emmanuel and too much about McTigue and so take his money into the nearest roulette game. It will disappear there, too, but at least he will know why it did.

It seems to me that the most interesting commentary on the fight game heretofore was furnished the other night by the Loughran-Latzo lightheavyweight championship fight. It didn't figure to be much. In truth, but one might think that more than $15,000 worth of patients would fall in line in this great big presence of the come-on, even for a match between Luke McLuke and his step-father.

The tip off is found in the fact that Loughran drew nearly that much in a 10-round, non-championship fight with Joe Sekyra in Louisville several weeks before. And the gate in question didn't break any Louisville records, either. As a matter of fact, about all it did was to break the promoter's heart.

BEST KNOWN TRACK ATHLETES IN MEET

Many Olympic Team Members Will Be Picked from Entries at Chicago

Chicago, June 4—A hundred or more of the best known track athletes in the country will be in Chicago on Friday and Saturday of this week.

The seventh annual national collegiate track and field meet will be a magnet. When the preliminary trials start Friday on Soldier's Field Stadium, it is a safe bet that about two-thirds of the men who will make up America's team will be on hand. Up to today entries had been received from 35 colleges and universities, headed by Illinois and Stanford, winners of the two outstanding collegiate titles of the United States.

The Illini copped Big Ten Conference team honors at Evanston last week, while the Californians went further afield and annexed th I. C. A. A. A. championship—letters and all—at Cambridge.

A slight change has been made in the meet, heretofore a purely individual affair. This season a team championship will be decided as well as medal winners.

Illinois and Stanford won't have everything their own way. According to the present lineup of entries, the Missouri Valley loop will be represented by Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and others. There will also be numerous smaller colleges who are sending their best bets for a share of the points.

OUTDOOR SEASON TO BE OPENED TONIGHT

Jimmy Brown and Frankie Stellmack Will Meet in Main Go; 28-Round Card Completed for Crystal Lake Park

Although bad weather is expected to cast gloom around the opening of the outdoor boxing season of the Marion Eagles Lodge at Crystal Lake tonight, rain will not stop the matches.

All fights during the summer months will be staged inside the huge pavilion. The ring will be erected in the middle of the dance floor with bleachers built around this.

The 28 round card that has been arranged is rated as one of the best round card attractions staged here this year. In the 10-round main go event, Jimmy Brown of Cincinnati will meet Frankie Stellmack of Cleveland. The Clevelander hails from the stables of Danny Dunn, manager of Johnny Risko.

Ray Snyder of Marion will be featured in the eight-round semi-final match. He will meet Elmer Frick of Cincinnati. The local boy has won a few fights here this season by wide margins.

Joe Kirk of Cleveland will meet Wildcat Malone of Marion in the six round curtain raiser. Malone is said to be a fast fighter who is making a bid to city honors. A four-round curtain raiser completes the program.

Advance seat sales point to a large crowd at the opening of the outdoor season. If these fights are given favorable reception on the part of fans it is likely that bouts will be staged every two weeks.

Hugh Harel and his Red Hot Peppers will be featured in a program of music during the fight. The orchestra is playing for dances at Crystal Lake.

KENTON REDS WIN SLUGGING MATCH

Get 20 Hits Off Two Delaware Pitchers; Score Is 9-7

Kenton, June 4—The Kenton Reds made it two straight Sunday when they defeated the Delaware Mueller Pets by a score of 9 to 7 before a record crowd at Lake Idlewild park.

The Reds deluged two Delaware hurlers with 20 hits, and acquitted themselves nicely on the field, having but one error. Travis, much touted right hander for the Pets, was forced to retire at the end of five and one half innings, after 15 hits had been chalked against him.

The pitching of Weiss for Kenton was one of the outstanding features of the game. He struck out 10 men and walked but two. He was nicked for 11 hits but kept them nicely scattered.

SURE WINNER

Indian Betters Own Record in Solo Decathlon Test

New York, June 4—Fast Elkcrack Indian athlete, was hailed today as a sure winner in the coming Olympics as a result of his brilliant performance Saturday and yesterday in his solo decathlon test at the New York Athletic Club field on Travis Island here. The former University of Nebraska star scored a total of 7,812.77 points, surpassing his own national record by 278.55 points and better Harold M. Osborn's world's record by 102.195 points.

The Indian's performance probably will not be accepted as an official record because he was without competition. But he promises to do equally well at the Olympics.

Industrial Stocks Follow Reactionary Trend; Prices Go Lower

MONEY SUPPLY IS CUT SHORT

Professionals Fail To Keep Market Up to High Pitch of Enthusiasm

Markets at a Glance

Industrial stocks reactionary, railroad stocks inactive, domestic bonds steady, foreign bonds steady, call money 6 to 6½ and 7 per cent, grain reactionary, cotton strong, copper firm, oil firm, sugar steady, rubber steady, pig iron steady, foreign exchange irregular.

New York, June 4—Industrial stocks on the big board today followed reactionary trend, prices working gradually lower as selling pressure became more insistent, and the banks renewed calls; demands upon the call loan market.

The huge expansion of speculative borrowing, coupled with the outward movement of gold on a large scale, has undoubtedly had its effect on the money market, curtailing the supply of funds for speculation. Without this enormous stream of borrowed money flowing into speculative channels it is impossible for the professionals and pools to keep the market worked up to the high pitch of enthusiasm that has been in evidence since the first part of March.

Most of the market leaders started the new week at higher price levels, though gains were modest and rarely exceeded two points. Brokers reported a good influx of buying orders over the week-end but professionals were ready to sell "for the turn" and prices dropped backward instead of proceeding on their usual upward course. Professionals sold Radio and General Motors quite freely, the former losing five points and the latter nearly nine points in the first three hours. Losses in other sections of the list were comparatively small and were counter-balanced by the spirited advances in a few of the specialties and industrials, the latter included the packing stocks.

Radio and International Tel and Tel were under selling pressure in the fourth hour when officials of the Radio Corporation denied that negotiations were under way for the sale and transfer of the commercial communications department of its business. Radio lost about 10 points of its recent advance.

Stock of the Armour Co. were active and strong on confirmation of the report that 312,500 shares of the class A stock had been taken over by the Arthur Cutten interests of Chicago. The A. stock reached a new high for the year at 20, and the B. stock was in active demand fractionaly below 13.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Markets were quiet here today. Ample supplies of nearly all kinds of seasonable fruits and vegetables were available with prices changed little from last week. Watermelons were more plentiful and dealers were asking from $1 to $1.50 for large-sized varieties. Light sales of melons were reported for Saturday by the dealers. An increase in the demand for cantaloupes is reported, however. The supply is plentiful and fair size melons could be bought today at 15 and 20 cents.

Sweet corn has again made its appearance on the market. Only small supplies were being carried by dealers, however, and a slow market is reported at 10 cents an ear. New potatoes continue to sell at five pounds for 25 cents and dealers report an increase in the demand. Old potatoes are becoming less popular and dealers report a falling off in sales. Prices from 25 to 35 cents were being asked today. New cabbage continues only fairly plentiful and was meeting a slow demand today at 10 cents a pound. Rhubarb is selling at three bunches for 10 cents and home-grown asparagus at 12 cents a bunch.

Strawberries were not so plentiful, although the price is holding at from 18 to 25 cents. Twenty-cent berries were plentiful Saturday and dealers report heavy sales. Home-grown berries will be slow coming on the market, growers report, due to the continued cool weather. Pineapples are selling at 15, 20 and 30 cents with varieties for canning selling at from $1.25 to $2.50 a dozen.

TODAY'S RENEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 4—Grain traders may come downtown this morning in a very bullish frame of mind on both wheat and corn. They seemed to have worked themselves into that psychological state on Saturday.

But whether this condition will have sufficiently high power of contagion to affect the outside public seems questionable.

But wheat and corn last week had good upward reactions from bottom prices. In both markets shorts covered heavily during Friday and Saturday. At the end of the week there appeared to be little short interest left in either of these markets.

Must Have Support Today

The result today is likely to be dependent for further advances on new buying. If that comes into the pits in volume it can easily carry prices higher until the big buyers of the middle of last week try to feed out their purchases.

The private reports issued on the first of the month did not present a decidedly bullish view of the wheat situation. But the trade often coppers these private reports as a matter of course.

That is what was done in the present case. The day they came out wheat turned strong in the futures market. That was not at all unnatural, for the market was heavily oversold on the prospect of covering on bearish reports.

The reports were bearish, in the opinion of this writer, but the covering was large enough to put prices up and consequently many persons to whom the statistics looked bearish assumed that they did not understand what the figures meant—that in fact, the figures must have been bullish.

Judge Conditions by Price

Most speculators get their whole idea of conditions concerning any crop from what the market does. If it goes up, the condition must be bullish, no matter what speculation and experts say.

Although this may be the theory, it is often quite the practice. If the market advances with bullish news, it would seem that bullish news must be the right kind. If the market declines with bullish news, it would seem that bearish news must be the right kind.

real influence and furnish the incentive for a break.

Snow estimate! a total wheat crop of about 791,000,000 bushels; Murray's figures put it at 775,568,000. The five-year average total crop is 807,415,000, so that the theory that Winter wheat damage has caused an enormous shortage is not sustained.

...NOUS PASTOR TO GIVE ADDRESS

Rev. O. J. Nease Will Deliver Sermon in Series of Services

With two exceptionally well-attended services yesterday, the revival at First Church of Nazarene opened for the week. In addition to the revival meetings a largely-attended memorial service was held at the South Canaan Church in the afternoon, a number of local churchmen attending.

Last night Rev. G. E. Waddle, pastor, preached on the subject, "What It Costs Not To Be a Christian," basing his message on the text Psalm 119:59, "Not to be a Christian means sacrifice of peace, joy, hope and of God's favor," Reverend Waddle said in part.

Other features of the service were the vocal selections, "Your Home May Have Thorns" and "Don't Forget That Jesus Loves You," sung by Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Sutton, evangelistic assistants. In the morning Reverend Waddle preached on the theme, "Kept by the Power of God," based on First Peter, 1:15, and Mr. and Mrs. Shelton sang "Jesus, My Jesus."

"Sacrifice" was the subject of Reverend Waddle's sermon at the memorial service. He used as his text Matthew 22:20 and 21. Rev. James E. Campbell, pastor of Salem Evangelical Church, south of the city, was in charge of the music which consisted of a number by the male chorus, and vocal selections by Reverend Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Sutton. After the service the congregation marched to the Canaan Cemetery and decorated the soldiers' graves.

A special service this week will be held Tuesday night when Rev. O. J. Nease, pastor of First Church of Nazarene, Columbus, will preach. There will be services at 7:30 o'clock each night and the following prayer services, this afternoon at the James Fies home, 200 Wildwood-st; Tuesday afternoon, the F. H. Marshman home, 416 N. Prospect-st; Wednesday afternoon, the R. B. Hayes home, west of the city; Thursday afternoon, the Lewis Redman home, 653 Leader-st, and Friday afternoon, the C. E. Blair home, 775 Oak Grove-av.

RAIN DELAYS START OF TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Prevents Removal of Old Pedestal Signals; Expect To Make Change Tuesday

Continued rain halted the removal of the old pedestal traffic lights here today, again delaying turning on the new sidearm lights. One pedestal signal was removed from the intersection of Center and Prospect-sts, and it is expected the others will be removed Tuesday, or possibly this afternoon, should the rain cease.

The old signals will be stored at the Central Fire Station pending final disposition. Since the city would be confronted with the same problems that resulted in the installation of the new lights, should the pedestal lights be installed in any other part of the city, it is probable that they will eventually be junked, officials stated.

The new signals will not be turned on until all of the pedestal lights have been removed in order to avoid confusion to motorists, it has been announced by Chief of Police Thompson.

Ritzy Rosey

Rosalie finds the lastest innovation in earrings quite a pleasure to wear since they don't require screw types. They slip over the pierced ears or pinch like most screw types. They slip over the ear lobes and are fashioned in such a way as to cause a vacuum which holds them in place. They are double, having a pearl in back as well as in front. Each pearl, including the drop, is a different color.

Brookhart Says Senate Committee Will Begin Work After Convention

Washington, June 4—An exhaustive investigation of charges that postmasterships have been bought and sold in the South was promised today by Senator Brookhart, Republican, of Iowa, chairman of the special investigating committee named by the Senate.

The committee will get under way shortly after the Republican national convention and will continue its inquiry all during the summer, Brookhart said.

"Whether there is any merit in the charges that public offices have been bartered away in the South I do not know, but if the charges are true the thing ought to be rooted out," said Brookhart.

The committee will go into every phase of the matter and give all sides an opportunity to be heard."

The investigation, resulting from the joint demand of Senators Harris and George, Democrats of Georgia, will be the first ever conducted in this field.

Don't Gamble with "cheap" paint

It will beat you every time!
Be on the safe side—line up with the great majority who prefer fine old SWP House Paint. These people know that it covers better, that it lasts years longer, that its beautiful colors don't fade.
SWP is more economical any way you take it. And here is why: It takes only seven gallons of SWP for the average house. It takes eleven gallons of "cheap" paint.
SWP beauty lasts for five years, rich looking to the very end. On the other hand, "cheap" house paints, cheaply made of cheap materials, soon fade, peel, chip. A short while sees the end of "cheap" paint. As a result, you have to pay for complete repaintings two, three or even more times during the average five year life of SWP House Paint. That is why SWP House Paint costs so much less than "cheap" paint, on the wall.

Stop in at "Paint Headquarters"
Let us give you estimates on a beautiful SWP job. Compare it with the cost of "cheap" paint. We'll show you it will cost you less than half as much yearly to keep your house or building well dressed in fine old SWP.

About buying Re-conditioned Furniture
Families who have one or more rooms in which good re-conditioned or slightly-used furniture will answer the purpose, frequently try to buy it from someone who advertises it in a "want" or "classified" ad.
Often a bargain is picked up in this manner. However, the plan has its disadvantages because you have only ONE suite to select from—and, there is no way of telling whether it really is a bargain because there is nothing that enables you to compare prices.
In our Exchange Department you get a choice of MANY single pieces and suites.
We suggest, therefore, if you have "slightly-used-but-not-abused" furniture to buy, that you visit this department, either before or after you have looked elsewhere.
Another thing that will interest many is that you can buy such furniture here with a very low down payment, and pay the balance during twelve months. You'll find some great bargains here!

Ossining, N. Y., June 4—Edward W. Fuller and W. 3-DAY EVENT OPENS TUESDAY

Elaborate Program Planned for Fire Department Heads and Guests

An invitation to citizens in general to attend any of the sessions when fire chiefs from all parts of the state meet here on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for the eleventh annual convention of the Fire Chiefs' Association of Ohio, was extended by Chief McFarland today. The meetings will be open to the public, the chief said, and a special invitation is extended to members of the fire brigades of the local industrial plants.

Firemen from the industrial plants are especially invited to attend the Tuesday afternoon session when W. T. Filmer, fire prevention director of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., will talk on "Are Fire Hazards Always Recognized," and also the meeting of industrial plant chiefs to be held in the grill room at the Hotel Harding at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, when problems pertaining to industrial fire prevention and fighting will be discussed. The meeting will be in charge of Chief E. E. Green of the Timken Roller Bearing Co. of Canton.

Program at Park

The chief also announced that the demonstrations to be held at Crystal Lake Park, Wednesday afternoon, will be open to the public. Spectacular exhibitions in which various fire-fighting devices to be on exhibition at the convention, will be operated, will feature the afternoon program at the park, while the night program will be featured by a huge fireworks display.

A large fireworks piece to be shown over the lake, blazing forth the words, "Welcome Chiefs," when lighted will open what it said by the committee to be one of the most spectacular displays of fireworks ever planned here. Additional beauty will be given the displays by the reflection of the water in the lake, above which the spectacle will take place.

Final touches in the convention hall on the second floor above the Hoch Motor Sales Co., on S. Prospect-st, were being given by local firemen today. Tastefully decorated with flags and bunting, the hall presents a very attractive appearance. A speakers' stand has been erected on the north side of the room facing the west with 200 chairs arraigned for the fire chiefs and visitors while on the south side of the room opposite the speakers' stand are arranged 15 tables for the exhibits. Each table is covered with white muslin and will be arranged for convenience of the exhibitors.

Space for Exhibits

The rear of the room will be used for the display of apparatus, most of which is expected to arrive in the city by Tuesday morning. Fire trucks, of which 12 to 14 are expected, will take part in a parade from the convention hall to Crystal Lake Park at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The visiting chiefs and their wives will meet at the convention hall at 1:15 Wednesday afternoon and will be taken to the park in automobiles provided by citizens.

The convention will open at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning with registration at the Central Fire Station. An automobile trip to the Harding Memorial and other points of interest about the city, will also be a part of the Tuesday morning program.

The convention proper will be opened at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, by Chief McFarland, who is president of the state association. Following the invocation by Rev. W. S. Young, a welcome to the visitors will be extended by Mayor Earl Hazen, which will be responded to by Chief James E. Granger of the Cleveland fire department.

Four addresses will feature the Tuesday afternoon program. Grant E. Mouser, Jr., assistant attorney general and former local city solicitor, will talk on "Firemen's Pensions and Compensation." W. T. Filmer, of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., will talk on "Are Fire Hazards Always Recognized?" while H. L. Bond, field secretary of the National Fire Protection Association, Boston, will talk on "Field Engineering Service of the N. F. P. A." and W. S. Wimard of the Ohio Inspection Bureau will take as the subject of his talk, "Fire Control."

The night meeting will be given over to the Ohio Association of Electrical Inspectors and will be featured with talks by W. M. Runyan, grounding expert for the Crouse-Hinds Co. Rochester, N. Y., who will take as the subject of his talk, "The Proper Method of Grounding." Robert Shepard, electrical engineer, who will talk on "Construction of Panel Boards and Proper Determination of Fuse Capacities," and M. F. Smalley, meter superintendent of the Ohio Power Co., who will talk on "The Value of Adequate Electrical Inspection Service to the Pubic."

DEAD BODY FOUND IN GARBAGE BARREL

Local Officials Investigate Mystery Disclosed at City Disposal Plant

Police today were investigating mystery surrounding the finding the body of a fully developed newly-born baby boy in a barrel of refuse at the city garbage disposal plant west of the city Saturday afternoon. The body, which was unclothed, was found by I. J. Tolle, who is in charge the plant, when the contents of the barrel were dumped preparatory to being disposed of.

He immediately notified R. E. Burnett, assistant superintendent at the sewage disposal plant, who notified C. M. Tobin, city relief commissioner, who in turn called the coroner, Dr. B. D. Osborn, of Waldo. The coroner and relief commissioner visited the plant, where they took charge of the body, which a short time later was turned over to an undertaker and buried at Marion cemetery.

That the body had been dead for some time is the belief of the coroner, as the body decomposed rapidly upon being exposed to the air and it was necessary to bury it at once. Because of the rapid decomposition it was impossible to determine whether or not the body had been born dead or had been killed.

Enoch England, garbage collector, who brought the barrel to the plant, when questioned by the officials said contents of the barrel came from a home on Toledo-av. He said he noticed the object when loading the refuse into the barrel but thought it was a doll and made no further investigation. No light on the mystery could be secured by the officials who questioned members of the family at the Toledo-av home. A general denial of any knowledge of how the baby came to be there, was made by the family.

Fifty permits were issued last month and 89 in May of 1927.

Included in last month's permits were five for construction of dwellings estimated to cost $12,000. Permits for garages amounted to $3,080.

Handreds of Friends Make Up Throng at Funeral Tribute to Murder Victim

ACCOMPANIED by what was declared to be one of the largest funeral processions ever assembled at the burial of a private citizen in Marion County, the body of Henry Foos, aged murder victim, was conveyed to its last resting place at Marion Cemetery, Saturday afternoon.

Between 50 and 60 automobiles, carrying friends and relatives of the aged man, made up the cortege which passed through the city from the home of Mrs. George Bird, daughter of Mr. Foos, where funeral services were held.

The Bird residence is northeast of Marion, not far from the Foos home, where Mr. Foos was attacked and fatally wounded by a robber last Tuesday. The victim of the attack, who was 73 years old, died in the City Hospital Wednesday noon.

Several hundred friends of Mr. Foos assembled at his daughter's home to join in the simple funeral rites planned as a final tribute to his memory.

While some probably came out of curiosity, the majority were present with a sincere purpose of showing respect to the memory of one who for nearly three-fourths of a century had lived among them as a friend and neighbor.

Sermon by Rev. L. S. Green

The throng of mourners filled the home and yard as Rev. L. S. Green, pastor of Likens' Chapel, gave a funeral sermon in which he extolled the high qualities of citizenship of the aged man felled by the robbers' fatal blow.

Still suffering from effects of shock and from being struck down by the man who slew her husband, Mrs. Foos, the aged widow, was present at the funeral, having been taken to her daughter's home in the C. E. Curtis & Co. invalid car. Because of her weakened condition, she was not taken to the burial services at the cemetery.

Services at the grave were brief, consisting of a short prayer, followed by the customary ritualistic ceremony and closing with another brief prayer by Reverend Green.

While the funeral and burial of Mr. Foos were in progress, preparations were being made by county officials to convene a special session of the grand jury to pass on a murder charge filed against Everett Koon, alias Cecil Dean, the alleged slayer. Koon, now held in the county jail without bail, has confessed to committing the robbery and attack, police state.

VISITING MINISTERS ARE SPEAKERS HERE

Occupy Calvary Evangelical Pulpits at Sunday Services

Two visiting ministers conducted services yesterday, morning and night, at Calvary Evangelical Church. At night Rev. Roy Deininger, assistant pastor of Calvary Evangelical Church, Cleveland, preached on the subject, "Paying Your Debts," taking as his text, Romans 1:14 and 13:7.

In the morning the sermon was given by Rev. W. H. McLaughlin, presiding elder of the Canton District of the Evangelical Church, who spoke on the text, Malachi 3:8, 9 and 10.

"In Malachi's time there were many who attempted to transgress the known laws of God, but it can not be done—a time of reckoning is bound to come," Reverend McLaughlin said in part. "This is true of our spiritual and physical life and also true of individuals, nations and the world. One will never have a delight in the Lord and a glad testimony of joy until one squares accounts and lives according to the Bible. If we are true to God we can accomplish what we undertake to do in His name. Religion is more than a mere profession, it is life."

At night the male chorus sang as a special number, "If Any Man Thirst."

AMERICAN GIRL TO FLY OVER ATLANTIC

Amelia Earhart and Wilmer Stultz Ready for Ocean Flight

intended using it on his forthcoming Anarctic expedition. Preparation for the flight had been going on for weeks, but the announcement of the sale of the plane was not made until last Friday.

Except that the Friendship is equipped with pontoons, it is almost an exact replica of the Southern Cross which is now winging its way over the Pacific.

In Red Cross Work

Miss Earhart served in the Canadian Red Cross as a nurse throughout 1917 and 1918. Later she went to California where she took up aviation.

Stultz jumped into the limelight last year as the pilot for Mrs. Frances Grayson's plane Dawn in its first takeoff. Engine trouble developed on the ill-fated plane when the ship was several hundred miles out at sea, but Stultz managed to bring it back to Old Orchard Beach, Me., in safety. Later the Dawn was lost, with Mrs. Grayson and two men fliers aboard.

Gordon hails from San Antonio, Tex., where he was born in 1901. He served in the army air service from 1919 to 1926. For the last two years he has been associated with the Reynolds Airway Corporation as a flight mechanic.

Fully loaded, including the weight of its three passengers, the plane weighs a little more than six tons.

WIFE UNINFORMED

Mrs. Stultz Nearly Faints When Told of Husband's Flight

Mineola, N. Y., June 4—Mrs. Wilmer Stultz, wife of the pilot of the trimotored Fokker monoplane, the Friendship, now on the second leg of a transoceanic flight attempt, did not know of her husband's contemplated plans until she arrived from Boston at her home here early today, 12 hours after her husband had made a safe landing with the plane at Halifax, N. S. She nearly fainted when she learned the news.

Mrs. Stultz said that she did not believe her husband had started on an ocean flight. She declared that she had been in Boston at the time of the start, but had not seen the take-off. She had been given to understand that her husband was going to Newfoundland with the plane on a test flight for Commander Byrd, she said.

"JUST LIKE HER!"

Uncle of Girl Flier Says She's "Spunky Little Thing"

Kansas City, June 4—"Well, now that's just like Amelia."

This was the comment of A. M. Earhart, uncle of the intrepid American girl to attempt a transatlantic flight, who lives here.

"...spunk, sounds a new woman age, thing," said Earhart.

LOBBY PROTESTS MARINE RULE IN LETTER TO CAL

Washington, June 4—"Would your wife and you want your son John to risk his life in Marine rule in Nicaragua? If not, what right have you to send the Marines there?"

These questions were asked President Coolidge today in an open letter from the people's lobby which protested Marine occupation of Nicaragua.

A proposed loan to the Diaz regime and a proposed survey for a canal in Nicaragua apparently are efforts "to make Marine rule stick in Nicaragua," the letter said.

PRESENT COOLIDGE NAME AT G.O.P. MEET

Hitles on Scene of Convention with Draft Movement Plans

Almost everyone in Kansas City has heard of such a letter, but no one has seen it and, in fact, no one can be found who has heard of anyone who has heard of anyone that has seen it.

So They Go Ahead

Friends of William M. Butler, chairman of the National Committee, who naturally would be the president's spokesman in such a matter, deny emphatically that Mr. Butler has any such missive. Others whose names have been linked in the gossip are equally emphatic in their denials. Hence, the conclusion reached by the drafters is that no such letter is in existence, at least, yet. And in that situation they are going ahead with their plans.

They can, in fact, do little else but go ahead. To haul down their flag now, at this stage of the proceedings, would be tantamount to admitting the impossibility of "stopping Hoover." Half the New York delegation of 90 votes, a dozen from Illinois, nearly all of Pennsylvania, a whole flock in New England, and a lot in the South were being held outside the Hoover column on the "draft Coolidge" plea. The anti-Hoover leaders can't let go.

Await Mellon's Word

In the end, it probably comes down to the diminutive figure of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. The 79 votes that he will control in Pennsylvania likely will prove the bellwether of the balloting, the question of how Pennsylvania will go on the first ballot has become, for the time being at least, the most interesting and significant question of the convention.

If Pennsylvania goes to Hoover on the first ballot, the chances are that it will be quickly over with the nomination of Hoover assured. The cabinet candidate can count between 450 and 500 votes outside the Keystone State, unless instructions and pledges are violated. Furthermore, Pennsylvania going for Hoover would be accepted as the "tip-off" that Mr. Mellon knew that President Coolidge would not consent to the draft.

Pennsylvania Holds Key

If, on the other hand, Pennsylvania's votes go to Mr. Coolidge it will galvanize the anti-Hoover forces into electric energy. Or should Pennsylvania's votes be held, for example, for Mr. Mellon himself, the fact will be interpreted as indicating that the sphinx like little man from Pittsburgh is willing to lend the tremendous weight of his influence to the task of stopping his colleague in the cabinet.

Pennsylvania holds the key to the situation as has few other single states in Republican history. For as Pennsylvania goes quite probably goes the convention.

SAYS REBELLION LIES IN WAKE OF PROHIBITION

15 DISMISSED IN SUNDAY MOVIE CASE

Managers and Employes of Three Houses Face Charges

Those arrested were Edward F. Shartless, manager, Jack Raymond, orchestra leader, John Gambrill, doorman, Ed Obenour, operator, and Blanche Porter, ticket seller.

Affidavits against 10 others from the Oakland and Princess theaters were not filed until later in the day. Appearing from the Oakland Theater were Ruben Maxson, owner, John J. Huebner, manager, Vida Bevis, cashier, Dorothy Wilson, organist, Elsie McKimm, door lady, and Fred Clagett, operator.

From the Princess theater were Ora DeWees, manager, William Black, operator, Corrine McCoy, ticket seller, and Bessie Mounts, pianist.

Bond Refused

The five arrested at the Grand were ordered to appear in Probate Court at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Judge McNeal was to set their bond. When they appeared, however, the judge refused bond and ordered the sheriff to place the prisoners in the County jail. But instead of locking the five in jail the sheriff turned them loose to appear this morning on their own recognizance. Sheriff Beal said this morning that he refused to jail the five, fearing that he might be held liable for false imprisonment due to alleged irregularities in making out the affidavits.

Trend of the Sunday movie controversy yesterday was entirely unexpected and came as a surprise to the public as well as theater managers. Twice Edward Sharpless has appeared in Common Pleas Court on a charge of operating a motion picture show on Sunday and as many times the jury has disagreed. His last appearance was last Monday. It was stated following the last trial that the court would probably order a new trial when the September term of court opens.

The appearance of the movie case in the Probate Court will not affect the present status of Sunday shows, it was stated today. While definite announcement has not been made by the managers it is expected that the three theaters open yesterday will be open again next Sunday.

"Lady Lindy" Bestowed on Aviatrix; Has Smile; Looks

BOSTON, June 4—Lady Lindy!

Today America has a heroine of the vainted spaces capable of intriguing the imagination like Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Tall, slight, with curly, yellow, bobbed hair, Miss Amelia M. Earhart, 30, who is co-pilot of the London-bound monoplane Friendship, bears remarkable resemblance to Lindbergh, whose air trail she is following.

"She looks more like Lindbergh than Lindbergh himself," declared Brynjulfe Standenaes, Norwegian artist, who made life portrait studies of Linde and who was in Boston last week.

And like Lindbergh Miss Earhart, college girl, settlement worker, former holder of the altitude championship for women and veteran of 500 solo hours of flying has an infectious smile that wins one and undoubtedly it prompted a deck hand who watched as she boarded the Friendship just before its pontoons scudded aloft from the waters of Boston Harbor, to cry out while he pointed a smudgy paw:

"Lady Lindy!"

Daily Proverb—"Men take less care of their consciences than of their reputations."

It's a sweetly solemn thought that when congress next meets it will have to adjourn on March 4.

Kansas suffered an eleven-inch rainfall, one day last week. Now we know that what's the matter with Kansas isn't a drought.

The growing number of hold-ups out in Indiana should not occasion surprise. Rule by violence is sure to engender violence.

The great increase in auto sales in Europe is held to be due to the introduction there by the automobile people of the installment plan of selling. We assume that the mortgage blank people also are reaping a harvest.

The value of the candy consumed in the United States last year was $342,000,000. It's hardly probable that Mr. Volstead realized at the time he sponsored his measure, how far-reaching its effects would prove.

It is disclosed that the padded payroll graft in the Bronx, New York, has amounted to $26,790 since January 7, of the present year. Isn't that rather petty, as graft usually goes there, for the metropolis?

One thing we have never been able to understand is how the police authorities of our large population centers can become so conversant with the life history of every one of its underworld characters of note, immediately upon his death, and are utterly unable to get a line on his criminal activities before.

Kermit Roosevelt was fined $25 in the Long Island City traffic court for driving his automobile thirty-eight miles an hour. If he didn't do better than that out here, he would probably be fined for obstructing traffic.

That phalanx of Middle-West agriculturists which is being assembled to invade Kansas City is to be attired in the meanest farm raiment its members can command. Isn't there grave danger that they will muss up their limousines?

The fact that 386 deaths have resulted from automobile accidents up there during the first five months of the present year doesn't appear to have created even so much as a ripple of excitement in Chicago, the Chicagoans possibly figuring that they may just as well be wiped out by devil-wagons as by gangsters and gunmen.

The Ford Motor company reached a new employment peak, last week, when the total number of men employed went up 2,712 from the preceding week's record mark to 115,395. Haven't those Fords any compassion at all for us true aristocrats of the land?

Great Honor to Mr. Baker.

It is a very great honor—that of appointment as one of the American members of The Hague tribunal—which has come to Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, an honor which comes to but one of many millions in a generation. That the distinction comes at the hands of one not of his party makes it the more pronounced and should cause him, as it doubtless does, to appreciate it the more highly. Such is the way it will be accepted by the entire legal world, carrying as it does recognition of Mr. Baker's outstanding ability as a lawyer; the recognition not only of a president and his advisers, but of a president who is himself a lawyer. Possibly no better slant can be given upon the tribute to the appointee's legal ability than to point out that it places him with such legal giants as Elihu Root, Charles Evans Hughes and John Bassett Moore.

That Mr. Baker appreciates the honor conferred upon him is evident from his expression when informed of his appointment. "It's a very great distinction," he said, "and I appreciate the president's confidence in me.

"It's likely that I may never be called upon to sit," Mr. Baker went on. "The American members of The Hague tribunal are part of a permanent panel, which is certified by this country for availability to arbitrate cases that may be referred to, and all nations are at liberty to select names from this panel.

"The four American members make nominations whenever there is a vacancy in the Permanent Court of International Justice, and submit the name to the League of Nations. There is a vacancy at present, and it is not unlikely that there will be a meeting to fill it."

It is seldom that one man is honored as Mr. Baker has been by two president of opposite political faith, but, so far as that goes, it is seldom that one man possesses the divergent abilities which are his and has made a success in every line of endeavor he has followed. He made a marked success as mayor of Cleveland; his success as secretary of war under President Wilson has been conceded. His career as a lawyer has been a succession of successes. He has made of himself a fine writer and a great orator. And now comes at the hands of President Coolidge this crown stone to his self-erected life monument.

Mr. Baker's friends and admirers may well be proud of him.

Enforcing Respect for Law.

That twenty-five British prisons have been abandoned in recent years owing to a lack of use for them is a matter of general knowledge, at least, it should be as it has been the subject of repeated comment in the newspapers of America.

Crime reached its peak in England and Wales in 1914. Since that year, the decrease has been alike marked and steady, with the result that England's criminal class is now estimated at 150,000 persons, "of which the overwhelming majority," an official report says, "is made up of petty thieves, bicycle grabbers, house and shop breakers, those who obtain goods under false pretenses, embezzlers and frauds." Such being the situation, and the percentage of decrease showing no diminution, the prison commission of the British home office announced last week that still other prisons will be closed during the present year, as it would hardly be an evidence of either good business or good government to maintain and operate empty prisons.

The mere announcement that twenty-five prisons had been closed over there didn't tell much to us over here. If twenty-five of the county jails of our land were abandoned it would not be much of an indication of a marked countrywide decrease in crime. However, last week's announcement gave the locations of the prisons abandoned over there, and to us, at least, it proved amazing. They are those at Bodmin, Brecon, Cambridge, Canterbury, Carlisle, Carmarthen, Carnarvon, Chelmsford, Derby, Devizes, Hereford, Ipswich, Knutsford, Lancaster, Lewes, Newcastle, Northallerton, Northampton, Reading, Ruthin, St. Albans, Stafford, Usk, Warwick and Worcester.

We can not say what the populations of these cities and towns are now, but before the war all but three of them were what we over here would call cities; that is, all but three of them had populations of over 5,000. Nine of them were much larger than our own home city and a number of them several times the size of Marion; cities like Derby, with 94,000 people, by way of illustration. And there is another matter to be considered. England is far more densely populated than the United States and necessarily there are far more people in her counties than in ours. Here in Marion county we had a population of 45,000, but Cambridge with 36,983 is located in a county with a population of 188,000; Carmarthen, with 10,000, in a county with 130,000; Carnarvon, a place of 9,000, is in a county of 118,000; Derby has a population of 94,000, but Derby county holds 528,000; Hereford, a place of 20,000 is in Hereford county with 115,000; Lancaster with a population of 31,000, is in Lancaster county which has a population of 3,926,760; Northampton county has five times the 61,000 population of Northampton, the city; Stafford, a city of but 20,000, is in Stafford county, which has a population of 1,083,000; Warwick, a city of 12,000, is in a county of 805,000 people, and Worcester county has 1,413,700, although the population of the city of Worcester is but 42,000.

It is only when we stop to consider that prisons have been abandoned in such heavily-populated counties as these because of lack of demand for them that we can realize the marked contrast between the crime conditions in England and Wales and the crime conditions over here. Here in the United States with a population of thirty-five to the square mile we are building new prisons and enlarging old ones, while England with a population of 701 to the square mile is closing up hers.

The explanation is that England enforces her laws and expeditiously administers punishment for their violation, and thus breeds respect for them. Over here we do not, and thus our laws have fallen into disrespect.

The international copyright convention now in session in Rome has decided that authors and composers should enjoy exclusive rights to their productions as regards radio broadcasting. Wonder what provision, if any, it contemplates for the safe-guarding of the think-tank drippings of hard working spreaders of joy and sunshine in paragraphs?

"I have come to have very profound and deep-rooted doubts," says Hendrik van Loon, "whether natural science as practiced at present by the human race, will ever do anything to make the world a better and happier place to live in, or will ever stop contributing to our general misery, as it has been doing for this last 'um-te-dee' years." We would never be able to get this paper through the mails were we to tell what the "reformers" probably think of Hendrik.

A cable from Wellington, New Zealand, tells about a whist game in which each player was dealt a complete suit, something the experts say "may not occur again in 100,000,000 deals"—unless some practical joker fixes the deck again.

The British have equipped two motor boats with aeroplane engines which have developed a speed of 340 miles an hour in the air and 200 miles on land with the hope of reaching a speed of 100 miles an hour in the water and regaining the British international trophy for motor boats now held by the United States. America's 'speed madness," upon which British visitors to the United States like to dwell when once more back home, seems to be contagious.

Izzy Einstein, of the one-time famous Izzy and Moe combination, found a town over in Czechoslovakia where drunks are put into a black, coffin-shaped box and hauled about the streets by two town criers, and he suggests that it be tried for prohibition enforcement over here. William Frank McGee, convicted of operating a bucket shop in connection with the defunct New York brokerage firm of E. M. Fuller & Company, which failed in 1922, defrauding customers of about $4,000,000 and who was sentenced to serve from fifteen months to four years in Sing Sing prison, will be released on parole next Wednesday after having served just a year's time. It's a great system—for offenders against the law.

A Dainty Machine.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

The modern teacher attempts to fill the mind of each of her pupils with accurate and common sense information. Of course, the child does not always get exactly the right idea of what the teacher intends to convey.

For instance, a twelve-year old friend of mine was discussing with me the other day what had been taught him about gall stones. He told me the teacher said alcohol would dissolve them. But when I suggested that perhaps this is an argument against the Volstead act, he hastened to say the treatment is useful for children only and would do harm to grown people. Then he added that he might be mistaken about the particular drug, possibly it was not alcohol the teacher mentioned.

Of course, it wasn't, but it is just this way ideas get started. Somebody misunderstands or fails to remember exactly what was said about some ailment. He passes on to others his mistaken notion and pretty soon all the world may hold to a false notion.

Most people believe that a foreign body in the ear may "work its way into the brain." This is a silly idea, absolutely without foundation. What does happen, however, is that ignorant and awkward efforts to remove it are likely to drive the thing deeper and deeper into the ear canal.

At the bottom of the canal is the ear drum, a delicate membrane which guards the middle ear. If roughness and unskilled efforts are used to remove the foreign body, it may be pushed down against the drum and may even rupture the membrane. This causes pain and real harm.

Sometimes, in the mistaken idea that a foreign body had entered the ear, an overzealous friend, in his efforts to remove it, has actually destroyed the drum and scraped out the little bones. Damage which can never be repaired may be done in a few minutes.

There is a funny old saying, attributed to a wise doctor, that "nothing should be put in the ear except the point of the elbow." That is good advice for the layman.

There are times, of course, when for one reason or another, when the doctor can not be reached, it is advisable to remove the foreign body. If that emergency arises, gentle syringing is all you should attempt. Warm water and a gentle flow of the fluid into and out of the ear, will probably accomplish the desired result. But no force should be used. Fainting and pain will follow undue force.

The best plan is to go to the doctor, and there is no particular hurry about that, because the foreign body will not get if it is left alone.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

There is nothing more wearisome than talk. Some people are sadly given to the production and distribution of more talk. What they have to say could be disposed of in 100 or perhaps fifty words, but they go on and on to the extent of thousands. There seem to be two principal reasons—first a love for the sound of one's own voice, and second, a failure to understand human nature sufficiently to sense the fact that the listener is not interested.

All worry, of course, is useless, but if there is one kind that is more useless than another it is worry over mistakes that have been made and can not be corrected. Once you have done something that can't be undone, the only normal thing is to check it off and think of it no more. When you have to answer for the mistake, meet the situation as best you can.

Do we sometimes wonder where the highest and finest impulses of men and women come from? If there is no such thing as a Creative Force in the universe, and if we are all just accidents, where do we get the hopes and aspirations and ideals that characterize even the worst of us? The natural riches of American put a heavy responsibility on our shoulders. With but seven per cent. of the world's population, we originate and control forty per cent. of the world's mineral production. One might go on with other figures to show that with what we have been given by nature we can not shirk our duty in the matter of world leadership.

Speaking of leadership, we need far more than natural resources, great wealth, or the mere desire for leadership. We need more good human stock in America. It is said there are 2,000,000 mental defectives in the United States who need the care of institutions. There are 5,000,000 who have been unable to get through grade schools, and 25,000,000 unable to get through high schools.

Rome.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

On this little earth—a speck in the solar system and an infinitesimal in the universe—there is a dot which bears the most memorable name in human history—Rome. This year Rome celebrates its 2,681st birthday. That would mark hardly a single second as ticked by the pendulum of universal time, but the period included in that second covers all that is greatest in the story of man. Rome laid the foundations for the modern world, though Greece prepared many of the materials. The result is stupendous—measured by human standards—but how has it affected the universe, or even the solar system?

We only need to put the idle question to appreciate our isolation and insignificance amidst the illimitable cosmos. Yet there is something within us which refuses to be content with this situation, and insists upon measuring itself with the greatest.

It is better for us, in the end, rather to cultivate self-respect by contemplating human greatness upon the earth, than self-abasement by considering human littleness in the universe. Rome's celebration. Rome, rousing herself in her third millenium, summons up the most imposing figures for such a reassuring view of human worth.

At the news that the old Tarpeian rock and the hill of the Capitol are now to be disencumbered of the excrescences that centuries have heaped around them, whose mind is not carried back to his school days? One hears again the discordant shouts of the invading Gauls gathered around the rock of the Capitol; one sees again the white-bearded senator rise from his curule chair and strike down the insulting barbarian; one sees the hushed crowd receiving the news that Hannibal has come over the Alps and is marching upon Rome, one hears the ululations after the terrible news of the Ticino, the Trebbia Trasimene, Cannae, as the resistless Carthaginian overthrows one Roman army after another.

And yet one sees the dauntless city of Romulus rise again, with bloody head, after every fall, until at last the name of Scipio Africanus blazes Rome's triumph to the dazzled eyes of the whole world.

And who can read without a thrill that at last the Palatine hill, with its palaces of the Caesars, is to be thoroughly explored and uncovered, and that the Circus Maximus is to be excavated? In the long procession of mighty figures that march before the memory at the mention of these things, stride Marius, the general of the Plebs; Sulla the aristocratic dictator, who sent Marius to sit desolate on the ruins of Carthage; Pompey who put down the pirates and crushed the great Mithradates; Julius Caesar, who died "bestride the narrow world like a Colossus," Brutus, who slew Caesar for "peace, freedom and liberty," Mark Antony, who "came to speak in Caesar's funeral," and "put a tongue in every wound of Caesar" till they moved "the stones of Rome to rise and mutiny."

There in the great review pass Cato, Cicero, Cataline, Lucullus the luxurious, Crassus the rich, with molten gold poured down his throat by yelling barbarians; Augustus, the world master; Tiberius, blind in his debauchery to what was brooding in Palestine; Nero, the circus monster; Julia, Livia, the Agrippinas; Germanicus; Caligula, "Little Boots"—they are going now to hunt for his sunken ships in Lake Nemi; Trajan, Hedrian, the great Antonines, Diocletian, and at length Constantine and the beginning of Christianity as a world power over the nations.

Out of these splendors of the past, for which history has no match, Rome today steps forth to take her share in the greatest conquests which humanity now sets in its eye. And about her, like a toga, she wears the majesty of her long past.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

GRADE CROSSING ELIMINATION.

Recent statements made to the Interstate merce commission that grade crossings are increase in this country and that their elim as a matter of safety for the public, is of far importance than the installation of automat control devices on tracks and engines, give lar interest to some suggestions made by J Davis, of the Delaware, Lackawanna & railroad, on this subject. His road, he s spent $23,000,000 since 1910 in getting rid tugs in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ne and yet only thirty-six per cent. of those lines have been abolished. "There are," "233,(000 railroad crossings in this count separate all of them, either by over or un sageways, would require generations of t complish and involve an expenditure of s like $19,000,000,000."

O. S. U. Students May Now Wear Cap of Their Choice

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, June 4—Following a heated debate over the question for more than three months, the privilege of wearing a new traditional cap has been given to freshmen of Ohio State University by the Student Senate, student governing body.

Because freshmen this year showed a dislike for the present cap and refused to wear it as is the traditional custom for first-year men, several members of the class suggested a new type of headgear to the Senate last winter. The body, however, refused to ratify the suggestion and declared that the old cap was the official model and should be worn.

Freshmen wanting a change in the style of the caps dropped the matter following the definite decision of the Senate and as a result the freshmen tradition disappeared from the campus. With its hands tied by a recent ruling of President George W. Rightmire, in abolishing freshmen hazing, the Senate was powerless to enforce the tradition.

The new cap which is believed will revive the tradition on the Buckeye campus, is a bright scarlet model with a small gray button and a short visor.

Kenton, June 4—One of the outstanding features of the third annual convention of the International Brotherhood of Magicians to be held in Lima in June, will be a visit to Egyptian Hall on the property of W. W. Durbin, Reech-st, Kenton.

The miniature theater, constructed and owned by Mr. Durbin, president of the Brotherhood, is devoted entirely to the expostulation of the innumerable mysteries of the black art.

The miniature theater has been the mecca for many of the greatest magicians of the past decade. They have both witnessed and presented performances in the hall of magic.

In the last two conventions of the Brotherhood held here in 1926-27, the theater was one of the outstanding show places of the hundreds of delegates from over the United States and many foreign countries.

Preliminary plans for the convention this year are being shaped at a conference of Mr. Durbin, Kenton, with civic club leaders in Lima. Among the celebrities of the magical world to appear in Lima for the convention will be the great Howard Thurston, Harry Blackstone, Dr. Tarbel and Burt Johnson, Canada's premier magician.

There is a possibility that some form of a reception will be arranged here for the delegates when they arrive from Lima to visit the Durbin hall.

That Which Guides Our Service

THERE is golden consolation and greater gain from serving human-kind which is far beyond the realm of mere remuneration, more greatly compensating than money. It comes from the knowledge of tasks perfectly done, with reverence and respect; and the reputation that remains steadfastly a reminder of utmost dependability. Our funeral service has become most highly regarded, and consequently is most generally preferred and patronized. The depth of confidence you can place in us is the most deciding factor. The definite assurance of up-to-date efficiency, which our newly modern methods and equipment emphasize, is the valuable certainty you have. All else depends upon the high quality of the foregoing major essentials; all else can be totally depended upon — if you appoint us your family mortician when the need arises.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

The Perfect Age

ALAS, my Daughter, this is an age of sad-eyed damsels; but be of good cheer. For there cometh unto every woman a day when she shall be happy and content with life and all the world.

Go to. A man hath "seven ages" but a woman is more consistent. For, having reached an age which pleaseth her fancy, she sticketh thereto; and neither calendars, nor time, nor earthquakes can budge her.

No damsel can be sixteen, forever; and a woman who is never over twenty-seven" is as unconvincing as a blonde chorus girl's hair.

But when a woman saith, "Lo, I am THIRTY-NINE," who shall challenge her. For who knoweth when Indian Summer cometh or when it shall pass? And, behold, Thirty-nine is the magic age at which all birthdays cease!

Yea, verily, it is the Perfect Age of Woman, when all her doubts and struggles and regrets are forgotten and the harvest of her Happiness is ripe.

When her charms are full-blown but not yet fallen away; when her heart and her emotions are seasoned but not embalmed. When her illusions are few but not yet dead; and when naught in all the world can perturb or astonish or dazzle her.

When her poise and wisdom make the unsophisticated damsel to appear as insipid as pink jelly, and her wit causeth the flapper's slang to seem gauche and raw.

When she may delight in all the privileges of middle-age and enjoy all the pleasures of youth.

When elderly lotharios no longer pursue her and cynical bachelors scorn to waste their time upon her; but young men hang garlands upon her door, and only the "desirables" are left upon her list.

When she may CHOOSE the color of her hair, and change it from season to season as her heart and her fancy may dictate.

When she can be equally happy with, or WITHOUT a man at her feet.

When sentimental conquests cease to be matters of life and death and become merely a pastime and a by-product.

When her beauty ceaseth to be the uncertain work of nature and becometh a work of Art.

When she looketh equally alluring in sport clothes or in exotic draperies or Oriental ear-rings or in a pink negligee.

When she hath ceased to yearn for "experience," to sigh for adventure or to tremble lest she die without love.

Verily, verily, Youth hath its pains and heartaches and disappointments. But for a woman of thirty-nine, Youth holdeth no shocks.

• • •

And it hath come to pass that there is no such thing as a "woman of forty." Selah.

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

What Has Happened So Far

John Cavendish invites Hastings, an old friend, home on sick leave, to spend a month at Styles Court, owned by his step-mother. She has recently married Alfred Inglethorp who is hated and suspected by all, his wife Mary, and his brother Lawrence. Soon after Hastings' arrival, Evie Howard, companion to Mrs. Inglethorp, denounces the dead husband as a scoundrel and begs Hastings to look out for Mrs. Inglethorp who she says is surrounded by a lot of sharks after her money. Cynthia Murdoch, a protegee of Mrs. Inglethorp, works in a dispensary and discusses poisons with Lawrence and Hastings. Dr. Bauerstein, a London specialist, seems attracted to Mary Cavendish. Hastings runs across M. Poirot an old friend and celebrated detective. Mrs. Inglethorp has a row with her husband. Bauerstein makes a late call. Mrs. Inglethorp goes to bed carrying a cup of untasted coffee in her hand and Inglethorp goes out with the doctor, telling John no one need sit up for him as he has a latch key. Hastings is awakened late at night by John. They go to his mother's room. She cries out in a strangled voice—"Alfred—Alfred!" and falls back dead. Dr. Bauerstein insists with the local practitioner that an inquest is necessary. Hastings asks John to let M. Poirot investigate his mother's mysterious death. Lawrence disapproves but John overrules him. Inglethorp returns and pretends great grief. Poirot discovers six clues in the murdered woman's room and extracts a small piece of half charred paper from the grate.

Now Go on with the Story

CHAPTER 8

"THERE, mon ami!" Poirot cried. "What do you think of that?"

I scrutinized the fragment. This is an exact reproduction of it:—

[illegible]

I was puzzled. It was unusually thick, quite unlike ordinary notepaper. Suddenly an idea struck me.

"Poirot!" I cried. "This is a fragment of a will!"

"Exactly."

I looked up at him sharply.

"You are not surprised?"

"No," he said gravely, "I expected it."

I relinquished the piece of paper, and watched him put it away in his case, with the same methodical care that he bestowed on everything. My brain was in a whirl. What was this complication of a will? Who had destroyed it? The person who had left the candle grease on the floor? Obviously. But how had anyone gained admission? All the doors had been bolted on the inside.

"Now, my friend," said Poirot briskly, "we will go. I should like to ask a few questions of the parlor maid—Dorcas, her name is, is it not?"

We passed through Alfred Inglethorp's room, and Poirot delayed long enough to make a brief but fairly comprehensive examination of it. We went out through that door, locking both it and that of Mrs. Inglethorp's room as before.

I took him down to the boudoir which he had expressed a wish to see, and went myself in search of Dorcas.

When I returned with her, however, the boudoir was empty.

"Poirot," I cried, "where are you?"

"I am here, my friend."

He had stepped outside the French window, and was standing, apparently lost in admiration, before the various shaped flower beds.

"Admirable!" he murmured. "Admirable! What symmetry! Observe that crescent; and those diamonds—their neatness rejoices the eye. The spacing of the plans, also, is perfect. It has been recently done; is it not so?"

"Yes, I believe they were at it yesterday afternoon. But come in—Dorcas is here."

Eh bien, eh bien! Do not grudge me a moment's satisfaction of the eye."

"Yes, but this affair is more important."

"And how do you know that these fine begonias are not of equal importance?"

I shrugged my shoulders. There was really no arguing with him if he chose to take that line.

"You do not agree? But such things have been. Well, we will come in and interview the brave Dorcas."

Dorcas was standing in the boudoir, her hands folded in front of her, and her grey hair rose in stiff waves under her white cap. She was the very model and picture of a good old-fashioned servant.

In her attitude towards Poirot, she was inclined to be suspicious, but he soon broke down her defenses. He drew forward a chair.

"Pray be seated, mademoiselle."

"Thank you, sir."

"You have been with your mistress many years, is it not so?"

"Ten years, sir."

"That is a long time, and very faithful service. You were much attached to her, were you not?"

"She was a very good mistress to me, sir."

"Then you will not object to answering a few questions. I put them to you with Mr. Cavendish's full approval."

"Oh, certainly, sir."

"Then I will begin by asking you about the events of yesterday afternoon. Your mistress had a quarrel?"

"Yes, sir. But I don't know that I ought—" Dorcas hesitated.

Poirot looked at her keenly.

"My good Dorcas, it is necessary that I should know every detail of that quarrel as fully as possible. Do not think that you are betraying your mistress's secrets. Your mistress lies dead, and it is necessary that we should know all—if we are to avenge her. Nothing can bring her back to life, but we do hope, if there has been foul play, to bring the murderer to justice."

"Amen to that," said Dorcas fiercely. "And, naming no names, there's one in this house that none of us could ever abide! And an ill day it was when first he darkened the threshold."

Poirot waited for her indignation to subside, and then, resuming his business-like tone, he asked:

"Now, as to this quarrel? What is the first you heard of it?"

"Well, sir, I happened to be going along the hall outside yesterday—"

"What time was that?"

"I couldn't say exactly, sir, but it wasn't teatime by a long way. Perhaps 4 o'clock—or it may have been a bit later. Well, sir, as I said, I happened to be passing along, when I heard voices very loud and angry in here. I didn't exactly mean to listen, but—well, there it is. I stopped. The door was shut, but the mistress was speaking very sharp and clear, and I heard what she said quite plainly. 'You have lied to me, and deceived me,' she said. 'I didn't hear what Mr. Inglethorp replied. He spoke a good bit lower than she did—but she answered: 'How dare you? I have kept you and clothed you and fed you! You owe everything to me! And this is how you repay me! By bringing disgrace upon our name!' Again I didn't hear what he said, but she went on: 'Nothing that you can say will make any difference. I see my duty clearly. My mind is made up. You need not think that any fear of publicity, or scandal between husband and wife will deter me.' Then I thought I heard them coming out, so I went off quickly."

"You are sure it was Mr. Inglethorp's voice you heard?"

"Oh, yes, sir, whose else's could it be?"

"Well, what happened next?"

"Later, I came back to the hall, but it was all quiet. At 5 o'clock, Mrs. Inglethorp rang the bell and told me to bring her a cup of tea—nothing to eat—to the boudoir. She was looking dreadful—so white and upset. 'Dorcas,' she says, 'I've had a great shock.' 'I'm sorry for that, m'm,' I says. 'You'll feel better after a nice hot cup of tea, m'm.' She had something in her hand. I don't know if it was a letter, or just a piece of paper, but it had writing on it, and she kept staring at it, almost as if she couldn't believe what was written there. She whispered to herself, as though she had forgotten I was there: 'These few words—and everything's changed.' And then she says to me: 'Never trust a man, Dorcas, they're not worth it!' I hurried off, and got her a good strong cup of tea, and she thanked me, and said she'd feel better when she'd drunk it. 'I don't know what to do,' she says. 'Scandal between husband and wife is a dreadful thing, Dorcas. I'd rather hush it up if I could.' Mrs. Cavendish came in just then, so she didn't say any more."

"She still had the letter, or whatever it was, in her hand?"

"Yes, sir."

"What would she be likely to do with it afterwards?"

"Well, I don't know, sir. I expect she would lock it up in that purple case of hers."

"Is that where she usually kept important papers?"

"Yes, sir. She brought it down with her every morning, and took it up every night."

"When did she lose the key of it?"

"She missed it yesterday at luncheon-time, sir, and told me to look carefully for it. She was very much put out about it."

"But she had a duplicate key?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

Dorcas was looking very curiously at him and, to tell the truth, so was I. What was all this about a lost key? Poirot smiled.

"Never mind, Dorcas, it is my business to know things. Is this the key that was lost?" He drew from his pocket the key that he had found in the lock of the despatch-case upstairs.

Dorcas's eyes looked as though they would pop out of her head.

"That's it, sir, right enough. But where did you find it? I looked everywhere for it."

"Ah, but you see it was not in the same place yesterday as it was today. Now, to pass to another subject, had your mistress a dark green dress in her wardrobe?"

Dorcas was rather startled by the unexpected question.

"No, sir."

"Are you quite sure?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"Has anyone else in the house got a green dress?"

Dorcas reflected.

"Miss Cynthia has a green evening dress."

"Light or dark green?"

"A light green, sir; a sort of chiffony, they call it."

"Ah, that is not what I want. And nobody else has anything green?"

"No, sir—not that I know of."

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky and Madge Watch at Son's Bedside

ALL my bitter resentment against Dicky melted away at his anguished cry that if Junior went away from us he would have killed him. I realized suddenly that, terrible as was my own suspense, Dicky's suffering was even greater, for to his grief and fear for his boy was added the awful feeling that if he had not permitted Junior to climb the high tree against my wishes and those of the other women in the house, the fall would not have happened.

I did not turn my eyes from the unconscious figure of my little son, for I still had the eerie feeling that I must hold him in my vision every instant until he came to himself. But I put up my hand, groping blindly for my husband's. He grasped it so tightly that it would have hurt if at that moment I had been capable of feeling pain. I tugged at his hand and he bent his head to mine.

"Don't say that!" I whispered. "It isn't true. You did what you thought was best for him."

He did not answer in words, but he sat down upon the arm of the big chair in which he had put me, and, releasing my hand for an instant, put his arm around me and drew my head back against his shoulder. Then he caught my hand again in his free one, and thus holding me tightly, kept vigil with me.

His nearness, his tenderness loosened the tension of my nerves lessened a trifle the feeling I had that my heart was in the grasp of a vise which was slowly tightening around it. Vaguely, I felt nearer to him than I had done in years. For the moment all our differences were forgotten. We had but one thought—every faculty of mind and body was focused upon the effort to bring back our boy to himself, if only by the sheer force of united wills.

It was less than half an hour afterward that I saw Junior's eyelids twitch slightly. Katherine rose quietly from her chair and spoke in an almost inaudible murmur.

"Neither of you must speak when he opens his eyes. He won't know you at first, but he's coming round. Better stand back a little."

Dicky stood up and almost lifted me from the chair which he noiselessly pushed aside. Then he drew me back so that Katherine would not be hampered by us, but still keeping a position which permitted us to watch our little son's face.

It seemed an eternity after that first flicker of his eyelids before Junior opened his eyes wide. But as Katherine had predicted there was no recognition in his big brown eyes, so like Dicky's own. I suppose there really was no expression whatever in them, but to me it seemed that they were pathetically puzzled and searching.

I had to fight the hysterical impulse to call my boy's name. I think it was the strong steady clasp of Dicky's arms which enabled me to keep my poise. Then I saw Katherine writing something upon a slip of paper. A moment later she slipped it to me along the bedrail, below the range of Junior's eyes, and I realized the infinite pains she was taking that no sound or sight of anything should disturb him.

He could not possibly see me, however, and I read the slip and passed it to Dicky.

"You said the doctor wished to see him when he came to himself. Have somebody telephone him, but shut all doors so the call cannot be heard here, or by Mother Graham. She must not come up here for a while."

Dicky read the slip of paper, nodded, went out of the room, returning again so quickly that I guessed Harry Underwood must have taken over the task of telephoning. But we heard no word of the process, nor did Dicky's mother come rushing upstairs as we knew she surely would have done if she had known that the physician had been summoned again.

I never have felt so helpless as in those minutes of watching, while my boy's eyes looked at me in dazed, unrecognizing fashion. There was nothing I could do to help him, though I felt that I gladly could have severed any member of my body in order to aid him. And never since the day that he was put into my arms after Grace Draper had kidnaped him, have I felt such a rush of grateful happiness as I did when the dazed look gradually left his eyes, and when he looked at me and murmured, "Mother?"

"A Famous Authority's Rule"

By Ruth Ramsay

Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily calculated for the bottle fed one. Then make up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and restless spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhoea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.

Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package so you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty cent bottles contain thirty five doses.—Adv.

THERE is nothing quite like Bayer Aspirin for all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is genuine Bayer; that name must be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine—in red—is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box when you buy it:

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Brides in Ten Cities Tell Housekeeping Plans

NEW YORK, N. Y.—A thousand brides in ten large cities disclosed their household plans in a recent survey.

On one point all these brides agreed. Their homes are to be run with skill, but they will not sacrifice a bit of good looks or charm. For instance, nearly all have decided how they will keep nice hands in spite of housework.

Many had noticed in beauty parlors that pure Lux soaps are used in manicuring, to soften and whiten the fingers. Others had noticed how nice their hands looked after washing fine things with Lux. So, of 1,118 brides, 1,060, or 97%, plan to wash dishes with Lux.

"It's so easy never to let your hands get red and coarse-looking," they said. "Many soaps make the dish bowls, but pure Lux suds are so soothing and gentle! And Lux for dishes is inexpensive, too, because the big package of Lux washes 6 weeks' dishes."

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday, all day, because it didn't rain, and when I had got the cows milked I turned them out till I had fed my face, and from our barn they went over to the vacant lot where we play ball and met Wes antzes and et and stood around and I expect they told each other how they had spent the winter, and if anything had happened to them and how glad they were it was summer again. And about that time I had finished fooling my face and me and the brush went over there and I got hold of the tail of the old cow, and Slippety, which is only crip, got hold of the tail of her calfie and we started for the pasture. While the Last Rag of Today were what they are were having conditions along behind the cows which were going majorly in one and got ahead of one of the calfies when my foot seemed to kind of sink in. But we went past so fast I couldn't be sure. I bet I never did get to the pasture so quick, and it was fun to see Hopper going it. He would hit his crutch on the ground and hop about half a mile, and then his foot would hit the ground, and then the crutch. If he hadn't had meat on him to hold his bones together I bet his skellington would of been scattered all the way from the vacant lot to the pasture.

When I got back home to be washed for Sunday school my ant said what made me so sweaty and I told her if she had straddled as far and as many times as I had she would be too. She sure washed me hard. I didn't get time to work on my squirrel trap. It is a smart squirrel and I have got to get a curve on it and fool him.

Today would of been a school day only vacation had come. We went out to the river and sat all day fishing but got nothing nibbles. The water went of being the only we can show up on high as we have to swimming. We had some fun anyway. I have glad as squirrel stinking suit. While under the bank her back for his and if she had been standing anything I would of had to hold it either. But as it was she swam behind her self and she was glad to get to land to stand in it to wring out her suit. I would have to do that.
